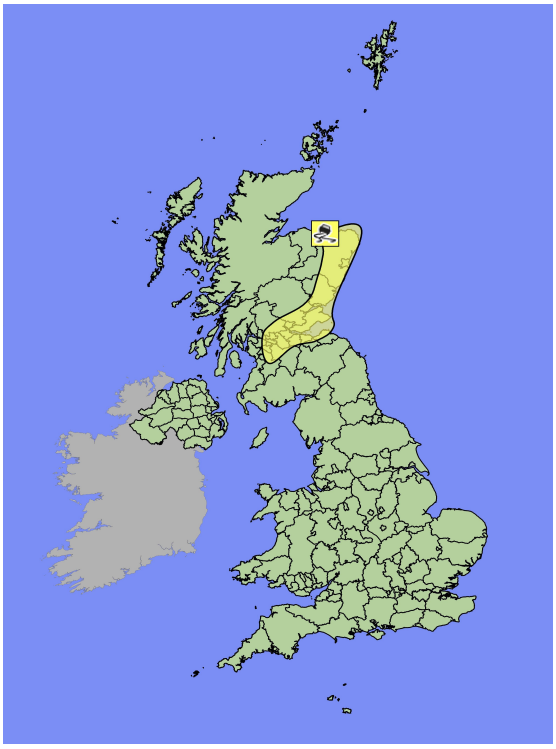
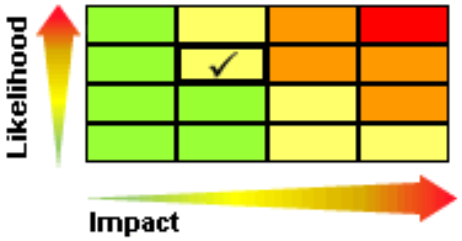
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Bands of showers, some wintry have been moving across parts of central and eastern Scotland including the Forth Clyde valley. As skies clear, temperatures will fall to near freezing and icy stretches are expected to form on untreated surfaces that have been left wet by the showers. Areas above around 150m are more likely to be affected.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 06:30 on Thu, 19th Jan 2012 until 10:00 on Thu, 19th Jan 2012

Where surfaces have been left wet by overnight wintry showers, icy stretches are likely to form on untreated surfaces for a few hours, and last through the morning rush hour. The public should be aware that this could lead to tricky driving conditions.
